

City of Bristol, Connecticut

COPS FOR KIDS FUND RAISER HELPS FIGHT CHILDHOOD CANCER

For the third year, police officers camped on the roof of the Super Stop and Shop on Farmington Avenue, raising money for children with cancer. The fund raising event took place on Memorial Day weekend where Lt. Jack Michaud and Officer M.J. Perry went up on the rooftop at noon on Friday and came back down on Sunday at noon.

The last two years that this event was held, it raised a combined total of approximately $20,000 for the Dana Farber cancer institute which specializes in childhood cancers.

To help them in their effort, a local band, Magic Moments volunteered their time to play and attract people to the event.

Officer Michaud had a goal of $10,000 in mind for this year, but was well aware that the economy may be a hindrance in obtaining that goal. Much to his and Officer M.J. Perry's delight, they far exceeded the goal of $10,000 and money is still being donated.